Mrs. Bennett jumped suddenly into public attention about three years ago when she assisted Captain Hurley masterly in gathering evidence which resulted in the conviction and sentencing of Attorney Frank E. Howarth a young Putnam attorney, for arson, after a sensational trial in the superior court for Windham county.

It was largely on Mrs. Bennett's evidence that Howarth and his associate, Lindley Cain, were convicted. Since then she has assisted the state police in other cases and has rendered valuable service.

NEW FEDERAL BUILDING

To be of Light Gray Brick—Size 112x50 Feet One Story.

Specification for the new federal postoffice building were received Wednesday morning by Postmaster James A. Gilman. These show that the building is to be constructed of light gray brick and will have granite and terra cotta trimmings.

The building will have a 50-foot front on the corner of South Main and Grove streets, extending 35 feet toward the north on East Main, and 35 feet on Grove street. The depth from the sides will be 52 feet, toward School street.

The plans call for a building 112 by 68 feet from corner to corner. Leading to the entrance on the corner will be eleven steps with two landings, upon which six granite pillars of the porch will rest. The building will be but one story, with basement, the height approximately 30 feet.

The main entrance will open into the lobby, 64 by 17 feet, and straight windows for parcel post, stamps and information.

The lock and call boxes will be on the left side as you enter. On one side of the lobby will be the postmaster's office, and on the other the money order and postal savings room.

There will be a large work room extending the rear of the building, with the best of light and ventilation. The flooring in the lobby will be of tile, and concrete will be used in most of the other rooms. The interior is to be finished in hardwood.

In the basement will be the boiler room, a spring room for the use of employees, shower baths and so forth. The mail vaults will be in the rear on School street side, with a carriers' entrance also on that street.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Aratheusa Buck Botham.

Mrs. Aratheusa Buck Botham, 83, widow of Thomas P. Botham, died at her home on Wilkinson street Wednesday morning. Mrs. Botham was one of the oldest residents of the city both in point of years and residence.

In what is now the city of Putnam she came here when the town was little more than a hamlet.

Mrs. Botham was born in East Killingly, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliza Buck, who were the early settlers of that town. She was of a family that became distinguished, one of her brothers, still living, is the age of 95, became professor emeritus of Boston university and one of the former presidents of the institution.

Another brother, who was killed in the Spanish war, was a member of the Spirit of the Times, a weekly publication. The plant remained closed during the strike, and subjects of like nature.

Mrs. Botham was twice married, her first husband being Edward Mann, who died in 1910. She had two children, born of this marriage, a son Edward, free jitney service between Dayville and Williamsville for employees of the plants who are not residents of Williamsville, but who live in the various villages of the town of Killingly.

She remained at Dayville in the morning, taking over to Williamsville help going to work for the day, and bringing back from Williamsville employees who have been working on the night shift. The process is repeated in the evening. The service being maintained by cars from a Dayville garage and the employees entitled to ride are provided with tickets by the mill company.

Lack of dwellings at Williamsville—the same difficulty that is hindering back Danielson's prize opportunity for development on a large scale—is the reason why the mill company has resorted to the free transportation service that has been inaugurated.

CONNECTICUT MILLS PLANT

QUIET DURING WEDNESDAY

Strike Settlement Probable, However—Chiefly Matter of Hours of Labor

The strike of the employees of the Connecticut Mills company seemed to be in fair way for prompt adjustment Wednesday, when there were further conferences between a committee of the strikers and Agent Obadiah Butler. The plant remained closed during the day, however, and all was as quiet about the place as on a Sunday.

The settlement of the difficulty seemed to hinge Wednesday on the matter of reaching an agreement as to hours of labor and an advance to the night weavers above the special bonus of $2 a week that they receive for doing night work. The employees are asking for a 55-hour schedule.

Agent Butler made the counter proposition that the employees accept a 55-hour schedule for the months of June, July and August, returning to the 55-hour schedule for men in September. This proposition is being considered by the weavers. The company has contracts based on a 58-hour working schedule and is thus handicapped in conceding an outright and immediate establishment of a 55-hour week.

The strikers are absolutely orderly and their conversations, through their committee, with Agent Butler are as gentlemanly and decorous as between attorneys handling a case. There was much of promise Wednesday that the strike will not be of long duration. Concessions of a mutual nature are expected to be made by a very brief interval in the way of a prompt adjustment, which, with good fortune, may come this week.

WIDOW CLASSEY DEGENERATE,

BREWER WROTE FROM RENO

Racy Letters in Naylor Will Case Hearing Read Wednesday—Second Day of Sensational Case.

There was more reading of racy letters at the Naylor will case hearing before Judge Thomas and Russell in the superior court Wednesday. These letters were more of the Searby Doane Brewer series to Mrs. Sarah Dunton Naylor, who died last February, leaving Brewer the use of four-fifths of her $101,000 estate.

In some of the letters read Wednesday Brewer addressed Mrs. Naylor as though she were a dual personality, some times loving her by mail as "Dearest" and again, on the same day, as "Eddie Naylor." Brewer's letters indicated that he was much enamored of Dearest but not at all pleased with Eddie Naylor. In some of the letters he spoke of Mrs. Naylor as "My Tirol Girl."

As in the case of the letters read Tuesday, the date lines were at Reno, Nevada.

Wouldn't Pay Inn Bill.

"Do you like these missive?" Brewer inquired in one of the many that he kept traveling east to Mrs. Naylor. "I do like them and I couldn't get along. But Sadie wouldn't back me—she wouldn't pay the bill at the Ben Grosvenor (in Fenwick). Sadie says she's going to Reno, but she thinks she's just it."

A Classy Degenerate.

And again: "The Naylor girl is a smoker, a drinker, a swearer and, for all I know, tells smutty stories. This is not my Tirol Girl. You are the classiest of classy degenerates. You have become a ranting woman, clever to the extreme. New acquaintances like it, but your old friends do not."

Sent Night Letter—Collect.

And on the same day in another letter he wrote: "Dearest (Gillie): The Naylor girl wants an explanation, so I can't write you. Sweetheart, I am sending this evening a night letter—collect."

On another day: "I hope you will make Sadie Naylor over, but wish that she will loan me that money. This will help me and so she can get back at her. I will also have enough to send you some gifts."

In a letter of January 10, 1916 "To My Own Dear Genevieve" Brewer wrote: "I have been thinking of you and the Naylor girl. The only way the Naylor girl can ever be happy with me is to do just what I say. Tell her that and she will tell everyone I am it. She must learn to have absolute, blind confidence in me."

Nearly 100 Letters From Widow.

A bulky package of letters that Mrs. Naylor wrote to Brewer while he was at Reno were laid in without being read. It was said that there are nearly 100 of them and that they dovetail in with Brewer's letters and much that Mrs. Brewer wrote in them takes the sting from letters he wrote.

Bank Man a Witness.

G. Harold Gilpatrick, cashier of the First National bank of this city, was one of the witnesses called Wednesday. His testimony had to do with transactions in which Mrs. Naylor and Brewer figured. Mr. Gilpatrick identified several letters at Brewer's that had been received at the bank.

New York Lawyer's Testimony.

Attorney George C. Austin of a firm of New York lawyers was another witness Wednesday. He was asked about the matters pertaining especially to Brewer's visits to his office in New York and relative to conferences he had with Mrs. Naylor over her business affairs.

Attorney Austin said in one of their interviews Mrs. Naylor had declared that she detested the need of attending to business details. She had told him of her plan to marry Brewer. Later, in January of this year, Mrs. Naylor had again interviewed him in New York. She told him she was going to Reno, where Brewer was then staying. There was nothing to indicate that she was not of sound mind, Attorney Austin declared.

Dr. Givens' Deposition.

A deposition of Dr. Givens, head of the sanatorium at Stamford where Mrs. Naylor was a patient and received treatment for the drug habit during December of 1914, was put in without being read in court.

Adjournment to June 6.

The attorneys agreed to exchange briefs by May 31, and adjournment was taken until June 6.

PUTNAM CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Receives Warnings Concerning Fake Colored Archbishop and Picture Enlargement Man.

Word has been received by the local

Chamber of Commerce that a colored gentleman claiming to be an Archbishop, displaying a large badge, and armed with an iron staff, is in Connecticut soliciting funds for the "Almighty Church." This gentleman is the personal representative of Christ, he claims. Those who contribute are given a promise of Heaven; and the close-fisted are threatened with a far worse fate. Like the fortune teller, he tells them they are going "on a long journey."

This "personal representative" had a talk with the personal representative of the police force in Bristol, Connecticut, and immediately decided to carry his staff and offer his blessings to some more appreciative community. The office of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce hopes to be informed promptly if any blessings are to be had in this market, as the officers may need them as much as anybody else. They promise to give Captain Ryan and Prosecuting Attorney Johnson an equal opportunity to acquire merit.

In contrast to this apostle, there is a crude business man operating in Connecticut, selling crayon enlargements of a dollar ninety-eight. On delivery, the picture will be found framed, at any price one likes, up to ten dollars. Those who are too parsimonious to buy the frame will receive abuse, but not the crayon enlargement, the one-ninety-eight nor the original photograph.

Before dealing with enterprising strangers, get a report on them from the Chamber of Commerce.
